The Internet is a dangerous place, full of shadow people looking to steal personal information. By enabling two-factor authentication (sometimes called two-factor verification) is one of the best ways to keep your accounts secure. However, the famous Hacker Kevin Mitnick shows how this safety measure is not completely protecting your data if you won't remain constantly alert. The hack in question was not developed by Mitnick, who works as Chief Hacking Officer for Knowbe4 security company. Credit for which goes to mitnick's friend and white hat of hacker kuba gretzky. The tool is known as evilginx, and makes it possible phishing when the target uses two-factor authentication. It is essentially a man-in-the-middle attack, but uses proxy_pass and sub_filter to modify and capture http traffic. It requires HTTP AA NGINX server and some familiarity with Debian Linux. Many people have the experience needed to do it, you can get a reduction of complete Technical Activities of Evilginx on site Gretzky's, but Mitnick has a nice, digestible video demo in action (embedded below). He uses LinkedIn as an example, but could be used on Google, Facebook, and anything else that uses the two-factor access standard. The attack starts in the same way all phishing attacks make one with a handmade e-mail cleverly. You have to convince your target to click on a link that loads your site, which you mask as your destination wait. In this case, ITA S LINKEDIN. Steal a username and password like this is simple, because it gives change t. A two-factor code changes every few seconds, so take that from the fake page is useless. Using Evilginx, MitNick shows as the page captures not the 2FA code but session cookie. That identifies the user to a site, allowing the attack to climb to your immediate account.mitnick goes on to show how you can manually load the session cookie through the Chrome developer console, which only requires a few clicks. Then, all you have to do is top up the page and view LinkedIn connected in session. You Donate T Need to enter a username, password, or even the 2FA code. Gretzky has published the code for his mod 2fa on github, so everyone has access to it. This means that people might try to use for phishing purposes, but security researchers and educators can also help users protect. It is only to show; Also two-factor authentication WONA T Protect you from your poor decisions.Now read? 20 best advice for privacy to stay anonymous online what my social security complete retirement security The year of birth determines when you become admissible for your social security of safety old age. It is the way people interact and the world see each other. It is your inheritance ... it is more important than a business brand because your personal brand lasts forever. I have trained people who have a successful career, and come to me because they suddenly discovered that they are not getting opportunities or having the conversations that would have to their next role. They are having what I call a $, ~ $ " Career Meltdown, "Everyone because they don't have a personal brand. The personal brand helps you become aware of your differences and your unique. It allows you to position you in a way that makes you stand out from the package, especially among other potential job candidates. It didn't make me wrong, having a big CV and a great LinkedIn profile is important. However, there are some steps you need to take to have a CV and LinkedIn profile that is To whom you are, the value you offer to the market, and personal warranty you provide results. Your personal brand is about strategically, creatively, and professionally present what makes you, you. Knowing who you are and the value you bring to the table allows you to be more informative, agile and adaptable to the changing dynamic world of work. So you can avoid having a series series Meltdown career. Your personal brand is essential for your career success in her article, because the personal brand is more important than ever, Caroline Castrillon outlines the main reasons why a personal brand is essential for career success. According to Castrillon, $, ~ "more popular for recruiters to use social media during the interview process. According to a 2018 careerbuilder survey, 70% of employers use social media to shield candidates during the process Assumption, and 43% of employers use social media to verify current employees. $ »The first thing I do as a recruiter when I want to control a candidate customer or coaching is to look for them on LinkedIn or other platforms of Social Media, like Facebook, Instagram and Twitter. Your fingerprint is the window that highlights the world you are. When you have no control on how you want to see, you're making a big mistake because you're leaving someone else to do A judgment for you for what you are. Like Jeff Bezos, Amazon's founder, once said, $, ~ "Your brand is what people say about you when you're not in the room." In his book, becoming O, Michelle Obama writes about the importance of having a personal brand and her journey to define her personal brand. He wrote that: $, ~ "If you don't remove them and don't define you, you would be quickly defined quickly and inaccurately by others." When you have a personal brand, you have control. You know exactly what people are. tell you when you leave the room. The magic of a personal brand is that you give you control on how you want to see in the world. Your trust and your conviction allows you to take advantage of opportunities and make informed decisions about your career and on Your future. He does not experience the frustrations of a fusion of career or being in a junction not knowing what to do after with your career or your life. With a personal brand, you have focus, clarity and a strategy to move forward towards the future success. Creating your personal brand won't happen during the night. It takes a lot of work and self-reflection. It is expected to use out of your comfort zone once, but many times. The good news is that more time spend on Outside your comfort zone, you'll like to be there. Being outside your comfort zone is where you can test the profitability and optimize your personal brand. 5 key steps to create your personal brand These five passes will help you create a personal brand that will deliver you the results you want with your career and in life. 1. Set up your personal goals What do you want to do over the next five years? What will your future future in the coming five or ten years? What is important for you? If you can answer these questions, then you're on the right path. Otherwise, you have to start thinking about them. 2. Create your single value proposal creates your single value proposal by asking yourself these four questions: what are your characteristics of your personality? What benefit do you offer people? Who are you and why do people have fun working with you? What do you do and what do you want people to do for them? How do you solve their problems? What makes you different from others like you? The answers to these questions will give you the information you need to create your professional history, which is the main step to create your personal brand. 3. Write your professional history knowing who you are, what you want, and the unique value you offer is essential for you to create your professional history. People remember stories. Your personal history incorporates your valuable proposal and tells the people you are and what makes you unique. This is what people remember you. 4. Determine which platforms Your personal brand decide which social media accounts and online platforms will better represent your brand and will allow you to share your voice. In a professional capacity, with a LinkedIn LinkedIn profile A CV that reflects your brand is fundamental for your position in relation to the role opportunities. People will connect with you because you like the story you're saying. 5. It becomes recognized to share your knowledge and skills a great way to promote yourself is sharing knowledge and helping others. Here is where you show you to know your things and get an exhibition to do it. You can do it through social media, write, comment, video, unite professional groups, networking, etc. Find your style and unique and use it to attract customers, opportunities or jobs you want. The importance of having a staff the brand will not go away. In fact, it is the only way you can stand out and be unique in a complex world that changes work. If you don't have a personal brand, someone will do it for you. If you let it happen, you have no control and you may not like that the story they create. Giving out from others takes time and investment. Most people can not make change alone, and here involving a personal brand is a viable option to consider. As a personal train coach, which works with my clients to create their personal brand is my passion. I love the fact that we can work together to create a personal history that defines exactly what people will tell you when you leave the room. The stories of other people who listen to the stories of other people is a great way to learn. In his article, 7 Ted speaks of the personal brand, Rafael Dos Santos presents the best talks in which speakers share their stories on $, ~ "because, $, ~ $, ~ $ this, $, ~ $, ~ $, ~ $ "as a personal branding. ((Guidedpr: 7 ted interviews on the personal brand)) take some time to listen to these speakers who share their stories and their thoughts on the personal brand . You will surely be so much about how you can start your journey to define yourself and take control of your professional and personal life. Your personal brand, without a doubt, is your secret weapon for your career success. How to Michelle Obama said, $, ~ "Your story is what you have, what you will always have. It's something to own. So go your story. Go traveling to create your personal brand that defines who you are, underlines your unique and the value you offer to the world. Photographic credit.
